

Episode Ten – Shireen video diary
Transcript

You'll never guess what happened today. Liam had the nerve to turn up! After all I've been trying to contact him and he's been blanking it, and he just turns up expecting to join in! I told him where to go. I just hope Dr. Jones didn't give him a mark for it, or mark us down for it, 'cause it wasn't our fault.

Apart from that, it went really really well. The role play was really really funny, and we managed not to laugh, and Rob was brilliant. Erm...I've really actually grown to quite like Rob. At first, I thought he was gonna slack off and stuff but I think he's really put the work in.

The PowerPoint was good as well; Delia and Muzz were really really on it. Yeah, so I am glad we did the role play. I think it was something a bit different and creative, and it made us stand out.

Erm...yeah, all I've got to do now is just do the marking sheets, and there's only four categories, so it shouldn't be too hard. I'm just kinda thinking that the four categories don't give me a chance to say how much work I've put in: I might as well have just slacked off and let everyone else do the work – like Rob! But, I've got my self-assessment to do anyway, and I think I can get across how hard I worked in that, so... I'm pretty pleased.
