

Listening and Interpersonal Skills

Websites

Websites relating to Listening Skills

International Listening Association - 'promoting the study, development and teaching of listening and the practice of effective listening skills and techniques'.

Listening Skills - Texas A&M University Student Counselling Service

This is a link to a web page developed by the Student Counselling Service at Texas A&M University. It provides some brief details about the process of listening and goes on to suggest a number of strategies students could use to improve their listening skills within the university environment. The web page can be accessed from the title link above.

Listening Skills - Salisbury University, Maryland

This is a link to a resource developed by the Student Counselling Service at Salisbury University. It provides a list of good and bad student listening habits. The web page can be accessed from the title link above.

Listening Skills - Eastern Washington University Counselling and Psychological Services

This is a link to a guide to effective listening that has been produced by the Counselling and Psychological Services at Eastern Washington University. The article can be accessed from the title link above.

Listening Skills for Students - Utah University

This web page developed by the Utah State University focuses specifically on the skills that underpin effective listening in lectures. A number of examples are given of strategies that students can try in order to help them engage more in these learning situations.

Websites relating to Interpersonal Skills

Facial expression - Dr Michael J Lyons, Kyoto Arts and Science Research

This Facial Expression Resources Page provides links to research groups and other resources concerning facial expression perception, recognition and synthesis.

Non-verbal communication - Dilek Eryilmaz and Steve Darn, Izmir University of Economics, Turkey

Non-verbal communication (body language, paralinguistics) has been a focus of attention for some time in areas such as the refinement of presentation skills, developing social skills, and even as a realistic alternative to the lie-detector test. Relatively little attention, however, has been given in language teaching to non-verbal communication as a complement to spoken language, though recent trends in neuro-linguistic programming regarding mirroring and parallel body language have filtered into current research and practice.

Interpersonal skills - quick tips for working in groups - Reading University Skills Opportunities.

This site considers the importance of interpersonal skills when working within a group situation.

Websites relating to Questioning Skills

Questioning Skills - Free Management Library - includes links to a number of interesting webpages that provide examples of questioning styles and techniques. The site encourages the addition of links and is continually expanding.

ChangingMinds.org - includes links to pages that provide examples of questioning types from chunking questions through to tag questions.

Effective Questioning - this site concentrates on the effective use of questioning, Bloom's Taxonomy of Thinking Skills and techniques for effective questioning.

Websites relating to Interpersonal Skills in a Virtual World

Computer User High-tech dictionary - Emoticons

wikiHow - How to understand chat acronyms

Learnhigher